The Balance of Power

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/European_balance_of_power

Hapsburgs, Bourbons, and British (Seventeenth Century)

British: Keep any royal house from establishing a universal monarchy on the continent (a la Napoleon)

Hapsburgs: Two branches of this family held the crowns of Austria, Spain, and the Holy Roman Empire

Bourbons: New royal house of France with ambitions of expanding

In the late seventeenth/early eighteenth century, Louis XIV constituted the single greatest threat to the Balance of Power. The Treaty of Utrecht (1713) ended Louis' expansionism, but did place a Bourbon on the Spanish throne.

The "Great Powers" (Eighteenth Century)

France, Britain, Austria, Prussia, and Russia

Partitioning of Poland

Prussia, Russia, and Austria agree to partition Poland, a weak confederation of nobles with an elected king. Since all three nations participated, the Balance of Power was not threatened.

Concert of Europe (1815-1878)

Established at the Congress of Vienna

Post-Napoleonic effort to maintain cooperation amongst the Great Powers to stop revolutionary movements and prevent another Napoleon-type figure from disrupting the Balance of Power. There were no continent-wide wars between 1815 and 1914, so this arrangement was pretty successful. The arrangement showed signs of fragmentation in the late nineteenth century.

German Unification (1871)

German Unification was a major event that disrupted the Balance of Power in Europe through WWII.

League of Nations (1919-1939)

International Body Created by the Versailles Treaty

Goal: To prevent war through disarmament and collective defense... that worked out well! The United States never joined and the organization basically disintegrated during World War II.

The Cold War (1946-1991)

NATO vs. Warsaw Pact

This time, the alliance system worked! The Balance of Power was modified after World War II with the partitioning of Germany and the entry of the United States into active association with

Understanding Women

(enough for the AP exam, at least!)

First off, the Roman Catholic Church has NEVER seriously considered ordaining women into the priesthood or relaxing restrictions on birth control. There will likely be a question on the exam about the Catholic Church and ordaining women will be a distractor.

During the Stuart Dynasty

Philosophers of Absolutism and Constitutionalism

Jean Bodin and Jacques Bossuet (Divine Right Absolutism)

Bodin and Bossuet both argued that sovereignty resides in a monarch and Charles I receiving a crown from a hand above. James I and Charles I tried to put Divine Right theory into practice in England. Charles I paid for this with his life.

Louis XIV, on the other hand, ruled by this philosophy and lived to a ripe old age.

WHERE HOBBS AND LOCKE AGREE:

Hobbes and Locke both rejected “divine right” theory. Both wrote that the first people are born into a state of nature, in which there was no government. In this state of nature, people have no way of protecting themselves or their property. For this reason, people form governments.

The only way to keep people from destroying each other is to have an absolute ruler that is so powerful that no one could ever think of challenging him. People choose a sovereign maintain order by governing absolutely. People do not have a right to overthrow the sovereign, as that brings things back to the state of war.

People establish governments to protect their natural rights of LIFE, LIBERTY, and PROPERTY. Governments are agents of the people in this regard, and can only act with the CONSENT OF THE GOVERNED. The people maintain their sovereignty and may overthrow any government that fails to protect natural rights.

The Dutch Republic

MERCHANT OLIGARCHY

The Dutch Republic had a complex federal system of government dominated by a combination of wealthy merchants and hereditary nobles. For more information, see my e-lecture:

What is a Stadtholder? (YouTube)

COMMERCIAL GIANT IN 17th CENTURY

_____ was a natural port city and the center of trade for much of the 17th century.

The Dutch provided the cheapest shipping rates in Europe at the time and dominated European (and, thus, international) commerce during the seventeenth century.

They also established one of the first modern stock exchanges, which helped to raise capital for commercial ventures.

LIMITED RELIGIOUS TOLERATION

(any toleration was rare at this time in Europe)

The Dutch Republic was dominated by Calvinist merchants. While the Dutch Republic did not tend to allow religious minorities to express their faith publicly, many Jews and Catholics were able to practice their religion in private without harassment. This policy attracted Jews from other parts of Europe (where they were still being persecuted), who became active in the vibrant business community. The Dutch were some of the first people to figure out that religious intolerance is not good for business.

Here is an interesting article about religious toleration in the Dutch Republic:
<http://www1.umassd.edu/euro/2007papers/bikk.pdf>

Dutch Golden Age Painting

The massive influx of wealth during the Dutch Golden Age resulted in an unprecedented interest in commissioning paintings among the merchant class. While Dutch artists produced many different kinds of paintings, the most famous pieces of Dutch art tend to picture people in everyday situations, often at work. The individuals pictured often reflect the Calvinist simplicity that was a key element of Dutch Golden Age culture.

The Crimean War (1853-1856)

and the _____ Empire VS. _____

As the Ottoman Empire (the “_____ Man of Europe”) continued its decline in the late nineteenth century, Russia sought to project its influence into the Crimean Peninsula (sound familiar?). Britain and France sided with the Ottoman Empire in order to halt Russian expansion, seeing Russia as a threat to the Balance of Power.

Both sides suffered heavy casualties due to changes in military technology. The disastrous “Charge of the _____ Brigade,” memorialized by Lord Tennyson’s poem, was the result of a cavalry charge at well-defended Russian artillery positions ordered by aristocratic officers who didn’t know any better.

Half a million deaths later, the Allies defeated _____, halting Russian expansion and preserving the Balance of Power.

After the Crimean War, the British modernized their military command structure, ending the age-old practice of _____ military commissions.

Italian Unification (1815-1871)

I still need to do a bit of research on this subject, but for now, here's what I've gotten from some other AP Euro teachers:

Important Individuals:

Mazzini – The Heart

Cavour – The Brains

Garibaldi – The Sword

Victor Emmanuel II – The Face

(“Victor E” Get it???)

- Early Italian Unification movement influenced heavily by romanticism
- The weakening of France and Austria facilitated Italian Unification
- Comparisons between Cavour and Bismarck
 - While Bismarck used Prussia's Great Power status to give strength to the German Unification movement, Cavour used diplomacy to forge alliances between Sardinia and Great Powers.

German Unification (1815-1871)

The Unification of Germany was the most important political event of the late nineteenth century, fundamentally altering the Balance of Power in Europe and setting the stage for the World Wars.

Since the Middle Ages, Germany had been politically fragmented. The Holy Roman Empire, a loose association of hundreds of German principalities that had come to be meaningless (Voltaire claimed that it was "Neither Holy, nor Roman, nor an Empire."), was abolished by Napoleon in 1806. The Congress of Vienna established the German Confederation, an association of 39 politically sovereign states.

The two most powerful states in the German Confederation: _____ & _____

"Those who speak the same _____ are joined to each other by a multitude of invisible bonds by nature herself." – Johann Gottlieb Fichte

The Congress of Vienna established (Prussia / Austria) as the most powerful German state, but Prussia would eclipse Austria by embracing militarism and modern industry. Prussia and Austria would compete for supremacy in the Unification movement.

Two Models for Unification

BIG GERMANY (GROSSDEUTSCHLAND)	Small Germany (Kleindeutschland)
_____ Austria	_____ Austria

What was the Zollverein? _____

The _____ Assembly attempted unsuccessfully to unite Germany on the basis of liberalism.

Otto von _____ would unite Germany using _____, a school of political thought that rejects ideology, instead opting for the projection of POWER (think Machiavelli). Although a conservative at heart, Bismarck would selectively use nationalism, liberalism, and even socialism in order to unify Germany under Prussian dominance.

In order to silence socialists, Bismarck banned the Social Democratic Party, but instituted the first social welfare programs (accident insurance, health insurance mandates, old age pensions) introduced in Europe. In order to appease Liberals, he instituted anti-Catholic policies and supported industrialization.

"Not through speeches and majority decisions will the great questions of the day be decided... but by IRON and BLOOD." – Otto von Bismarck

	_____-Prussian War (aka, "Seven Weeks War")	Established _____ as the dominant German state. Excluded Austria from a united Germany.
	_____-Prussian War

Germany's annexation of the French territory of _____ - _____ would cause lasting divisions between France and Germany in the years leading to World War I.

The Paris Commune (March-May, 1871)

When Louis Napoleon III was captured by the Prussians, his government collapsed and Parisians and a Republic was proclaimed. The movement within Paris became increasingly radicalized and the local government was taken over by a communist-dominated alliance.

During Bloody Week, the French Army (having regrouped from the war) attacked Paris and put down the Commune. Between 6,000 and 20,000 Parisians were killed in the fighting.

The Dreyfus Affair (1894-1906)

Alfred Dreyfus, a Jewish officer in the French military, was charged with spying for the Germans. He was court martialed and found guilty based on questionable evidence. Dreyfus was publicly humiliated and sentenced to life imprisonment on Devil's Island, a penal colony in the Caribbean.

The Humiliation of Dreyfus

When military leaders discovered evidence of Dreyfus' innocence, they covered it up in order to avoid embarrassment. Émile Zola, a well-known French writer, published an open letter to the President of France in a newspaper, accusing the government and the military of anti-Semitism. Zola wrote,

"These, Sir, are the facts that explain how this miscarriage of justice came about... [Dreyfus] is the victim of the lurid imagination of Major du Paty de Clam, the religious circles surrounding him, and the 'dirty Jew' obsession that is the scourge of our time."

The French population was sharply divided between the liberal and progressive "Dreyfusards," who believed in Dreyfus' innocence, and the more conservative, religious anti-Dreyfusards, who believed he was guilty. Public rallies and protests were staged throughout France, highlighting the polarization of French society (which still continues to be polarized today).

Dreyfus was given a re-trial in 1899. He was found guilty again, but pardoned. In 1906, Dreyfus was formally cleared of all charges and his military commission was re-instated. Dreyfus went on to serve in World War I and retired honorably from the military.

The Zionist Movement & Jewish Nationalism (1895-1948)

The Dreyfus Affair is often cited as a major influence on the Zionist Movement, which started with Theodor Herzl's publication of Der Judenstaat (The Jewish State). Herzl and the Jews who joined his movement gave up on the idea of integrating into European society, believing that anti-Semitism was bound to arise anywhere in Europe where Jews went to escape anti-Semitism elsewhere. Herzl wrote in Der Judenstaat,

"The Jewish question persists wherever Jews live in appreciable numbers... This is the case, and will inevitably be so, everywhere, even in highly civilised countries... so long as the Jewish question is not solved on the political level."

The Zionists' advocacy for a Jewish State was in accord the spirit of nationalism that spread through Europe in the nineteenth century, resulting in the unifications of Germany and Italy. Initially, Zionists did not receive a warm reception from Europe's political class. It would take the Holocaust for European elites to finally support the establishment of a Jewish State.
